

Corrosion Control System

Abstract

A corrosion control system, using a data processor and a data base, is adapted to store data indicative of a facility and elements within the facility subject to corrosion, and of corrosion control standards for controlling corrosion on the elements. Log on screen reports summarize recommended work or costs, at the respective enterprise, structure, or element, levels, and wherein the log on screens include with links for accessing linked recommended screen reports at the element, structure or enterprise level.